

KNIGHT, BILL

Bill Knight joined to be a pilot and attended base camp in Brandon. Rules prevented him from flying due to his eyesight. He served at a training base throughout the war, so he could continue to support his mother and two sisters. He served in 15 bases across the country in air field ground operation and heavy equipment maintenance. In his last station postings he was involved in developing training material to meet new standards. He was also trained as a firefighter and managed firefighters as a part of overall Ground Operations at flight training airfields. He received the Canadian Volunteer Service Medal, War Medal 1930-45.
